The Russian writer Ivan Sergeevich Turgenev said „What we have we do not keep, having lost, we cry”. Without any doubt I support his point of view. I agree with him. This is a well-known fact that people are never satisfied with what they have; they always want something more or different, and I agree with it. People don't enjoy their life and that's why they feel upset.

People don't notice what things that surround them; they are immersed in their personal problems, and have the only desire to have more money and don't think about their soul. For example, a person have enough money and a big family. He don't is always in a bad mood and don't appreciate what he has. But in one moment his ~~there~~ member of his family ~~to~~ recognise that he gets ill. This illness ~~is~~ can't be treated and then the person understands that he didn't enjoy the moments when all ~~were~~ good. all his family was healthy and happy. That's why we should be always satisfied and try to give our positive energy to others.

To conclude, I would like to say that people should appreciate what they have and be satisfied with every moment of their life. I think that ^{our} happiness begins with us. ~~and~~
